

KEYNOTE PRESENTATION Rock Stars of the Arctic!

Scattered across the Canadian North the stone sentinels of Inukshuks stand in silent testimony to the power of human relationships. Each stone is carefully placed to indicate meaning and convey a message. Each one of us is given a pile of stones in the form of our human contacts. This powerful presentation will leave you inspired to build your life by carefully selecting one rock, one friendship, one relationship, one connection at a time. Enjoy and be awed by incredible true stories of life in the Arctic.

This inspiring presentation is appropriate for all audiences both youth and adult. Freddi takes you on a journey up the Mackenzie ice road with adventures from her life along the way. She shares the history and legends of the Inukshuk and challenges and inspires the audience to think deeply and selectively about their relationships, in all aspects of their lives.

Time: 45 – 60 minutes

Travel: Freddi travels from Southern Alberta and is available country wide.

Extras: Most often a small polished stone is given to each audience member

Permission: is given to video tape the presentation for internal distribution. A copy for Freddi is requested.
